BEAM

DEDICATION

We, the students of Broadview High School, proudly dedicate this, the fourth
"Beam" to

MR. M. S. HARIRI

We, the students, found our principal very intelligent, understanding, and one who always found time to guide and reason with us. Mr. Hariri was very active in all sports and encouraged other extracurricular activities; setting good examples for his students to follow.

We can in perfect confidence of not being accused of flattery say that Mr. Hariri has worked diligently, and faithfully to improve the standards and curriculum of our school during his office of principal ship. Our association with Mr. Hariri will benefit us in future years.

We hope

We hope this dedication will show our appreciation for all he has done to improve us as students. We are certain his keen interest in his profession will be most rewarding for him and for those with whom he comes in contact.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

The end of a school year will always be welcomed with mixed feelings - joy and sadness, anxiety and relief, completion and commencement.

These mixed feelings are probably most intense among the graduates. The class of '63 - a wonderful group of graduates - goes forth to the world with a feeling of joy at having stayed on the road to the finish; a feeling of sadness at the parting of ways, a feeling of anxiety about the world and one's place in it; a feeling of relief that the good fight was fought and is now over; a feeling of completion about a task begun when one was only six; and a feeling of commencement - a feeling that now adult life begins - in agriculture, in industry, in business, in professional training, and in raising a family. These are genuine feelings, and I trust that every member of the class of '63 will meet the challenge with confidence, fortitude, and dignity. I extend to all the graduates my best wishes for a successful, prosperous, and happy future.

My task in writing this message is doubly difficult because I am leaving too. Broadview High School has accomplished a few modest advances over the past two years, and it might be well to review them:

- 1) Student activities were expanded and re-organized, and student organizations became more active and more representative.
- 2) Grade IX Business Essentials and Grade X Record Keeping were introduced this year; Grade XI Bookkeeping and Grade XII Economics will be introduced next year.
- 3) Dramatic activity increased considerably; Grade IX and Grade X Dramatics will be introduced next year.
- 4) Greater freedom of choice of subjects within regulations and with the guidance of the school, was encouraged.
- 5) A Guidance Program based on recognized tests was started this year.
- 6) Greater emphasis on laboratory work in the teaching of science was put into effect.
- 7) An annual Science Exhibit was initiated as part of Education Week.
- 8) Increased participation by local communities in matters affecting the welfare of the school, especially by members of the Central Board, was encouraged.
- 9) A Home & School Association was organized at the end of last year. A Driver - Training Program, sponsored by the Association, will be introduced next year. A Careers Night and increased School Visiting were initiated by the Association.
- 10) Revisions of subjects are being introduced wisely, starting with Social Studies and following up with Mathematics, Physics, and Chemistry. The use of films and filmstrips, as instructional aids, was increased.

These modest advances would not have been possible without the co-operation of the superintendent, the teachers, the boards, the parents, and the students. I am confident that the students of Broadview High School will continue to avail themselves of the opportunities offered to them by their communities and to strive earnestly to gain in knowledge, skill, character, preparedness, and fellowship in order to serve themselves, their families, and their communities ably and constructively in the years ahead.

It is not easy to say good-bye to any group of friendly people. Allow me to say that I never had the privilege of saying a more difficult good-bye to a friendlier staff or board than the Staff and Board of Broadview School.

M. S. Hariri

EDITORIAL

Another year is coming to a close and no doubt every student tries to remember what happened on the first day of this school year. We are more apt to remember all the good days rather than the disappointing days, the exciting and humorous experiences rather than the embarrassing ones. The yearbook staff and myself hope this year's edition of the yearbook will help you to recall the happenings of B. H. S. in 1962-63.

This year the yearbook is being printed by Leech Printing in Brandon. We hope this year's annual will maintain the same high standard of the Broadview High School annuals of previous years.

I would sincerely like to thank those on the yearbook staff for their co-operation and assistance. I'm happy to have had the pleasure of working with you.

To the 1963 Graduates our congratulations and best wishes to those who are furthering their education, choosing careers or whatever you may be doing in the future.

Mr. Pinter

WILFRED BLAUS

Grade XII's man of opinions; even tries to keep Mrs. Drake in line. His stories entertain the boys who eat lunch at school. Ambition: ?

LEONA DIMLER

Has the fortune this year to sit across the aisle from Wilfred. How she gets any work done we'll never know! Ambition: bible school.

FRED BAHR

Is a genius in French class but just another headache to Mr. Pidhorny. Fred hopes to become one of those high-paid and instantly rich medical men after graduation.

WINNIFRED GATRELL

Blessed with a pair of the sneakiest big green eyes you ever saw. During school hours she spends her time arguing with Don and talking with Nita. Ambition: nurse.

DONALD FATHERS

When Don is seen with an overly full stomach and picking his teeth with a deer antler, one can only imagine what he's been up to the night before. Ambition: farmer.

GRETA BORGER

Greta is Wilfred's favourite victim but she's able to defend herself and dishes it right back. Ambition: to take a business course.

DONALD RINK

Grade XII's math genius and mischief maker. Don always likes to have the last word in any argument. Ambition: banker.

CATHERINE ANDERSON

If there was a wall dividing our town, our curious Cathie would be the first one over. Ambition: the gay life.

WAYNE LARTER

Wayne is the school's only subtle comedian, much to Mrs. Drake's dismay. Ambition: agricultural engineer. Fate. farmer.

ANITA ERICKSON

The one and only Swede in Grade XII. Anita gets in lots of practice for her future career by running around sticking everyone.

TERRANCE FITZGERALD

Familiarly known as "Burgess's Nightmare". Terry is an enthusiastic sportsman and slo vice-president. Ambition: undecided.

GERALDINE CRIDDLE

Curler, play director, and lively part of the Chemistry class. That's our Gerry. Her ambition is become a nurse.

RONALD SALESKI

Occupies a seat behind Fred Bahr; in spite of this he remains cheerful and sane, achieving good marks. Ron is president of the Student Assembly. Ambition: University.

MARION FOCKLER

One of the few people in grade XII who believes the teachers know more than we do. Marion is an avid dancer. Ambition: Lab.-Technician.

ALBERT OLSON

Mrs. Drake gets her muscles from hitting Albert on his fuzzy head. But, in Physics he is Mr. Hariri's pride and joy. Ambition: grain grower.

JEAN KIENAS

Jean jostles to school every morn to spend another day doing battle with Don Rink. She achieves excellent marks in spite of this. Ambition: teacher.

DONALD MISKIMAN

Is grade twelve's ladies' man- hasn't complained once, except when Mrs. Drake gets after him. Is usually seen laughing with Wilfred. Ambition: real estate.

JUDY STRANGLUND

This tall, blonde lass from the grade XII room is the usherette and cashier at the local theatre. Ambition: uncertain.

DONALD FUCHS

He takes an active part in many sports, especially football and hockey. Don is the proud owner of his own car already. Ambition: civil engineer.

BEVERLY HERR

Bev is kept busy hopping in and out of the grade XI and XII rooms. Bev can be found where there is activity. Ambition: teacher perhaps.

ROBERT LITTLE

As the teachers and students of B. H. S. can tell you, Robert isn't called "Reb" for nothing. Ambition is still not decided.

RONALD LITTLE

Quiet, naive, best in the class? That's not our lively, spirited "little" twin. Ronald's ambition is like his brother's.

BRYAN NORMINTON

Although Bryan Usually keeps everyone in fits of laughter there is a thoughtful, serious side to him. Ambition: pharmacy.

Mrs. Drake as blue as can be,
Tuesday morning then rolls around
With Mr. Pidhorny wearing a frown,
Wednesday comes and then, Oh yes!!!
Mrs. Dreger and Mr. Burgess,
Thursday approaches and then rolls by Leaving Mr. Pinter wearing a sigh.
Friday is the morning which we like best,
But to Mr. Hariri it's like all the rest.

INITIATION

On Friday, October fifth, B. H. S. thought it had turned back the ages to the time of cave men as the FLINTSTONE MOTHERS came in wearing potato sack dresses two inches above their knees carrying a diaper bag also made of potato sack. The boys found out later they were also carrying a thirty-seven inch club. They had a large bone in their hair, bone necklaces, bracelets, and anklets. No shoes were allowed inside the school, but outside they could wear thongs. On their backs was a sign printed in two inch letters, FLINTSTONE MOTHERS.

The boys created a real riot. They wore their shorts with diapers overtop, fastened with large safety pins. On their bibs was written BEDROCK BABES, and on their heads they wore bonnets with a four inch brim, tied with a twelve inch pink bow. They carried real baby bottles, soothers, and doll with a diaper and bonnet. This was really a sight but everyone agreed they were rather cute.

In the afternoon, the initiates went downtown, and we are sure that everyone remembers the Christmas Carols, twisting exhibitions, free toilet paper and chalked footprints on the sidewalks.

All were rewarded in the evening when the Initiates, their parents and everyone else were entertained by the rest of the students. The program consisted of two plays, two solos, two duets, a piano solo, and accordian solo, and Grade X girl's group singing. Then the M. C. presented gifts to the best dressed Initiated. These were Laurie Listrom and Edwin Loseth. Lunch was served by Grade XI and Grade XII girls. After lunch a dance was started and followed by "Everyone Dance". The band played "Home Sweet Home" at 1:30 and everyone went home after a very enjoyable evening.

B.H.S. PARTY

Grade XI honored the rest of the school by making our first party of the year a real success. Beginning at eight there was dancing until 11:00 when a lunch of soft drinks, doughnuts, and jambusters was served. Dancing was resumed until twelve-thirty. Then Grade XI had the task of cleaning up. Everyone had a good time and went home happy after an evening of good fun.

CAROL FESTIVAL

On Tuesday, December 18, 1962 the B. H. S. auditorium was filled to capacity when the school and various church choirs presented the annual Carol Festival. Mr. Hariri was the master of ceremonies. Everyone enjoyed the pageant by Graves VII and VIII directed by Miss Cope, who once again did a wonderful job of making the evening a success. The community singing was one of the highlights of the evening as everyone joined in singing them. The duets, solos, and choir items were enjoyed by all and everyone left in a Christmas mood.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Christmas party was conducted by the Grade XB students. Grade XB spent most of their time during the week decorating the gym, stage and the lovely big tree. With what time that was left they practised for the program which was put on in the afternoon of December 21 commencing at 1:30. There were five items on the program, 1) a food relay game (all the teachers remember this game) 2) a one act play called "Sixteen" 3) another play 4) an advertisement game Then came good old St. Nick with his annual kiss for Mrs. Drake. Finally the moment everyone had been waiting for; the gifts were given out. We honored with the presence of Mrs. Pinter and Candus, who didn't appreciate Santa Claus. The afternoon was a tremendous success.

HIGH SCHOOL PARTY

Friday, February 2 was the scene of another monthly party put on by Grade XA. Even though it was a very stormy night we still had a fair turnout. Grade XA had novelty dances and many fine records to dance to and enjoy. At eleven lunch was served to hungry dancers and then dancing was started until twelve fifteen when the party broke up and everyone went out into the blizzard again.

Unit Bryant Oratory Finals

The Unit eliminations for the Bryant Oratory Contest were held in the Broadview High School Auditorium on the evening of January 29. Contestants from Broadview were Alice Szakacs, who spoke on "The Price of a Happy Life" and Judy Pope, who spoke on "Beethoven". Edward Hall of Whitewood who spoke on "Fidel Castro" was placed first and Alice Szakacs was placed second.

EDUCATION DAY

Broadview School observed Education Day this year on Thursday March 7. The highlight of the day was the exhibition in the lab. A Ping-Pong Tournament and films helped to make the parents visit enjoyable.

VARIETY NIGHT

For a month before the "Big Night" Mrs. Drake and Mr. O'Kane had students practising plays, songs, and other acts. We did not mind though. As the big night drew nearer, even school and evening practices were called for (as the girls in the singing item soon found out).

Then on Thursday, March 21 in the afternoon the first performance of B. H. S. on Stage was presented to Grades 1 to 6, who were a very appreciative audience. On Friday the actors and actresses once again had butterflies before their performance this time put before Grades 7 and 8. Finally the last performance for another year and the performers gave a good show for a very good crowd. Congratulations all!

All were invited to come to the school to a dance organized by the Grade IXB students. The students spent Thursday and Friday decorating the gym and made it look lovely, with the fancy streamers, the "Chinese Gardens" sign and the colored lights. The band was Broadview's own "Rebels" and the music was well played and enjoyed. The evening ended with everyone tired but happy.

LITERATURE

Jody awoke with a start, not knowing why he woke so suddenly. He looked out the window and the sky was gray and laden with early dawn. All was still and quiet except for the pounding of the surf on the beach. Jody lay there motionless and wondered, then memory flooded over him like a wall of icy water. Involuntarily he shuddered. This was the morning! Jody screwed up his face in determination. He mentally scolded himself for being such a "pansy".

Moments later he was out on the lonely beach. A pathetic little figure with a twisted leg, all black in the gray of the dawn. At his heels followed his little dog Rags, a scrawny, listless looking mongrel. Jody was much like his dog, a scrawny little person. His white face set off his shaggy red hair and made the freckles stand out on his face.

Slowly he made his way down the beach to a secluded spot where no one ever went. He stood looking out to Deadman's Rock looming black and jagged on the skyline, where the water roared and threw itself against the invulnerable granite. Then as Rags stretched out on a flat rock to catch the early morning sun, Jody looked down at the waves breaking at his feet. Terror rose in his throat and tasted bitter in his mouth as he stared down into the swirling green. Nausea enveloped him and he turned from the waves blindly, shaking with fear. Sinking in the sand he buried his face in his arm and cried with great wracking sobs.

He could not do it. No matter how pleased his father and mother would be, no matter how strong and well his leg would get again. He could not ever swim again.

Then through the shroud of his misery a voice sliced through him, "What's the matter Fraidy Cat? Scared of the water?"

Startled he looked up and saw a girl in the water laughing and smiling as she dog paddled in circles. She was a little older than he was, perhaps twelve years to his ten. But she was as strong and brown as he was frail and white.

Jody's fear was smothered as his pride rose to the surface, "Course I'm not afraid. I just don't feel like swimming this morning. I came here to lay in the sun for a while."

"Oh! Then why were you crying? Never mind. I'll come and talk to you. I think you need some cheering up."

The two lay on the beach and talked or layed in companionable silence as the sun rose higher and warmed them with its bright rays. Jody felt his heart lightening with her bright chatter. With every passing moment he grew more determined that he was going to swim again, make his leg strong and well, more to please his new friend than anyone else now. A flood of affection flowed through as he realized his true motive for his new determination. Overwhelmed by this new emotion he leaped up and fled away from the spot and the other human who had such a power to influence him.

When he arrived back at the beach house, well past lunch time he was met by his mother whose eyebrows were knit in a frown of consternation and worry. Over sandwiches and milk he blandly told his mother the first lie he had ever uttered. He said that he had merely been playing with Rags down the beach and had forgotten all about time. This new emotion was too new and too big for him to share with his mother.

Looking at his half eaten sandwich and noting his pale face, Jody's doting mother hustled him off to his bed and made him lie down all afternoon.

In the seclusion of his little room Jody lay on the bed and stared at the ceiling. Away from the girl his determination was not so strong. Still mentally scolding himself Jody fell into a fitful slumber and dreamed dreams of oceans of water, each drop containing the girl's laughing face and each wave taunting him with "Fraidy Cat".

Next morning Jody awoke very determined that to-day he was going to swim. No excuses this time. But his mother would not hear of him going into the sunshine that day. Fearing sunstroke she made him play in the shade in the back yard. This was anguish for Jody as he wanted to begin before his courage failed him again. But the next day was rainy and wild and he began to wonder if fate were against him as felt his courage slowly ebbing away.

When he finally got down to the beach again he anxiously looked for the girl. She was no where in sight. With a heavy heart Jody flopped in the sand beside Rags and let the morning sun soak through his shirt. Then a shadow fell across his body and he looked up and saw her standing beside him. Without a word she turned and strode to the water and dived in. Jody watched her swimming strongly and smoothly cutting a wide swath in the water with her lithe body. Enviously he watched the smooth sure movements of her brown limbs. Oh how he wanted to join her in the water and swim like that too. In the grip of sudden determination Jody jumped up and strode to the water. Then as the waves broke around his ankles his determination dissolved and turned to fear again. Defeated he went back and lay on the sand again.

As the summer stretched behind him in a line of golden days and worn sand, Jody's confidence in himself grew with the patient encouragement of the girl. But still not enough so that he could force himself to enter the water. As the holidays were only a week from ending it did not look as he was going to swim that summer. But Jody had had a good summer nonetheless. He was browned and tanned from the sun and was fairly happy as he stood on the beach watching his friend's dark head bobbing in the waves as he had often done before. As he stood watching her head dropped below the waves. A sudden thrill of fear and panic went through him as he stood transfixed watching the spot where her head had been. As it appeared again and he heard her scream for help Jody was galvanized into action. Kicking his shoes off he dived into the water. A cold icy shock shook him as he hit the water, his mouth filled and his eyes saw through a haze of shifting green. Momentarily panic filled him and paralyzed his limbs. But it was over in a minute and miraculously he was swimming again with a strong, sure stroke. He swam out, caught her by the hair and towed her limp form to shore. Soon she was safely on the beach and wrapped warmly. As he looked down into her frightened eyes, the realization of what he had done flooded over him. Jody rocked back on his heels, lifted his face to the sun and laughed with pure joy.

MY BEDROOM

My bedroom is room 27, third floor. The brass knocker has never been used, so just push the button and we will enter. The dimensions are twenty-three feet by thirty feet, with full length windows on the south and west sides. The floor is covered with a light brown wall to wall carpet. Walls are painted in different shades of green. Record player, bed, television, liquor cabinet, and chairs are done in light mahogany. The interior lighting can be changed to six different colours. Full length mirrors on the north wall serve also as clothes closet doors. All pictures and lamps were imported from Italy; thus concluding the description of my room.

LIFE

Lord I am but a student
Who writeth with a pen
Struggling with my homework
Till bedtime cometh past ten.

Lord I am a student
Cussing now and then
At the teachers' assignments
Till recess comes at ten.

Lord I am a graduate
Finishing my grade twelve
I am going out into the world
To struggle for myself.

Lord I am unemployed
Wishing I was back at school
Instead of on the street
An independent fool.

MY GREATEST THRILL

About three years ago when I was twelve years old we lived on a farm ten miles south of Regina. It was just a regular farm with all the usual farm implements and animals that had nothing to do but eat and get fat.

Farm life is all right for some people but it was not for my sister and me. We were just not "cut out" to be farmers. Most of the time we would go and sit on a hill and talk about the places where we wanted to go.

Travelling was one thing we had in common but we never had the money or the time. There was always a big fuss when we just wanted to go to Regina for a few days.

Then one day we saw an ad in the paper. We were not too interested in the ad but we were in the contest below it. The contest was one of those that if you counted correctly the number of holes in a certain picture, you could go all around the world with all expenses paid.

Well, we both did the contest and sent it into the paper. For two weeks we listened every day to the radio. We finally forgot all about the contest and decided to do our best in farming and school.

One day my sister came running home from school with a newspaper in her hand. She was so excited we could not tell what she was saying. When she calmed down she gave me the newspaper and in big black letters I saw our names. We had won our trip around the world. Both our answers had been correct.

Were we ever happy! I practically ran all the way to Regina spreading the news. A month later we were home again but we were happy to be home. We were lonesome most of the time we were away but we still say it was thrilling and exciting.

Now three years later we still talk about travelling but we confess that month away from home and then coming home again was the biggest and greatest thrill of our lives.

(A SCHOOL FRIEND TWENTY YEARS HENCE) THE MATRON

I saw her, the school friend of long ago, inspecting the clean of the green tiled cheery children's ward. Her motherly figure was sheathed in the starched white uniform in which she looked coolly efficient. Her dark hair, salted with grey, was drawn back into a neat bun on the nape of her neck. Her matron's hat was carried with grace as a symbol of long years of toiling and climbing upwards in her profession. She had always been a wise and dedicated nurse, able to show concern towards her patients and at the same time manage to keep her ward running smoothly. She could be stern and justly demanding when the occasion called for it. But no rule could ever stand in the way of one of her patient's or nurse's happiness if she could possibly help it. The pale flickers of light playing in her hazel eyes radiated her cheerfulness throughout the ward. This best friend of years ago was loved and respected by everyone with whom she came in contact.

The Broncos captured the East Mainline Zone Championship with six wins and no losses. They then entered into a battle with Indian Head. On Thursday Oct. 11 the Broncos journeyed to Indian Head. At the end of the first quarter Indian Head was leading by two touchdowns. By the end of the first half Broadview was losing by 28 to 0. The score at the end of the game 42 to 0 did not indicate the effort the Broncos gave.

Oct. 14 Indian Head journeyed to Broadview to play the second game of the two game of the two game total point series. Broadview managed to get on the scoreboard with a much better effort this time. The final score was 54-26 for Broadview.

Broadview's three highest scorers were: Ron Saleski, 96; Terry Fitzgerald, 36; Mickey Bourns, 36; Keith Andrews, 12.

VOLLEYBALL

The boys team put a good fight in the subzone playdowns, Oct. 27 but did not come out victorious. Against Wapella they won 2 games out of 3. Whitewood then eliminated Broadview in their next round.

In the Unit Playdowns, Oct. 13 in the first round Whitewood defeated Kipling. In the second round Whitewood again was victorious as they defeated Broadview. Broadview defeated Kipling in the third round.

Broadview's top three scorers in the regular season were: Ron Saleski, 55; Peter Inkster, 54; David Ward, 44.

CURLING

Our Bonspiel this year lasted one week. The trophies were victoriously won by Mr. Pidhorny's rink consisting of Pat Briggs, Louise Rink, and Dennis Polson. The cups were donated by the H. S. C. C. Other prizes donated by the merchants, among which were steak dinners and strawberries and ice-cream, were appreciated by everybody. A good time was had by all and everyone is looking forward to the Bonspiel next year.

Girls' Sports

Volleyball

In the Volleyball Subzone Playdowns, Oct. 13 the girls won two games out of three against Kipling and also two games out of three against Whitewood, winning the subzone.

Oct. 27, the girls journeyed to Whitewood to play in the Unit Playdowns but were eliminated in the first round.

Members of the volleyball team were:

Carol Ledohowski, Carol Strickland, Linda Miskiman, Sharon Gaddie, Mavis LaVallee, Pat Briggs, Penny Schettler, Marolyn Tocker, Judy Pope, Helen Horejda, Doreen Saleski, Ruth Ward.
